Fulbright Program for Non-US Students (Institute of International Education)

A mainstay of America's public-diplomacy efforts, the Fulbright Foreign Student Program brings citizens of other countries to the United States for Master's degree or Ph.D. study at U.S. universities or other appropriate institutions. The program has brought some of the world's finest minds to U.S. campuses and offers program participants insight into U.S. society and values.

Many foreign Fulbright grantees are early-career professionals who will return to take leadership positions in their home countries, often working at universities or in government service.

More than 1,800 new Foreign Fulbright Fellows enter U.S. academic programs each year. Foreign students apply for Fulbright Fellowships through the Fulbright Commission/Foundation or U.S. Embassy in their home countries. The Institute of International Education (IIE) arranges academic placement for most Fulbright nominees and supervises participants during their stay in the United States.

Paul and Daisy Soros Foundation Fellowship for New Americans

The Fellowships are grants for up to two years of graduate study in the United States. Each year the Fellow receives a maintenance grant of $20,000 (paid in two installments) and a tuition grant of one-half the tuition cost of the U.S. graduate program attended by the Fellow. The recipients are chosen on a national competitive basis. Thirty Fellowships will be awarded each year. A New American is an individual who (1) is a resident alien; i.e., holds a Green Card or, (2) has been naturalized as a U.S. citizen or (3) is the child of two parents who are both naturalized citizens. The Program is open to individuals who retain loyalty and a sense of commitment to their country of origin as well as to the United States, but is intended to support individuals who will continue to regard the United States as their principal residence and focus of national identity. The applicant must either have a bachelor's degree or be in her/his final year of undergraduate study. Those who have a bachelor's degree may already be pursuing graduate study and may receive Fellowship support to continue that study. Individuals who are in the third, or subsequent, year of study in the same graduate program are not, however, eligible for this competition. Students who have received a master's degree in a program and are continuing for a doctoral degree in the same program are considered to have been in the same program from the time they began their work on their master's degree.

Study America- The Graduate Program

Study America is a service for qualified students wishing to study in the United States at the graduate level who are unable to afford such study without financial assistance. IIE also arranges placement in short-term training and intensive English programs. IIE's expert placement staff will see the candidates through each stage of the submission and placement process. Upon review of the completed application, a placement administrator in consultation with the candidate develops a submission plan and recommends five institutions at which the candidate will be competitive. (This list may include two to three institutions requested by the candidate). Candidates are assigned an account at embark.com to complete the web-based application. At this time, you are responsible for paying the full placement fee. IIE guarantees an offer of admission to at least one of the institutions. Should you not receive an offer of admission IIE will refund the placement fee, less a $100 non-refundable application fee. IIE provides many services during the application process.

Limitations: Scholarships and fellowships by nomination only to graduate students from China (including Taiwan) for one to two years of master's degree study in the U.S. Fields of interest: International affairs; International exchange, students Student Scholar Grants: The foundation assists needy promising students, sponsored by institutions in China (including Taiwan), to study in the U.S. for one to two years. Grants are not made directly to individuals, but only to scholars nominated by an approved Chinese educational or U.S. educational or research institution. The foundation invites academic institutions in the U.S. and China establishing a sister or joint-research relationship to jointly sponsor a student/scholar for support. The grant provides the student with $17,500 annually for living expenses, or the scholar with $20,000, transportation costs, health insurance, book allowance and an academic trip within the U.S. The institution in the U.S. is expected to waive tuition fees for the student or provide the necessary working conditions for the researcher and encourage them to return to China. Institutions selected on this program can expect to receive support for five years and can negotiate for renewal of the agreement after the fourth year. The institutions need to submit progress and financial reports every year.

Heritage Prize: The prize is awarded to returnees to China/Taiwan for excellent achievements done during their stay in the U.S. A $35,000 prize is awarded for two years ($17,500 each year)

Deadline(s): Before the end of Dec. for the Heritage Prize and Jan. 31 for others. Additional information: Nominations and application proposals must be from Chinese or U.S. institutions.

Ford Foundation International Fellowships Program

The International Fellowships Program provides support for up to three years of formal graduate-level study leading to a masters or doctoral degree.

Fellows are selected from countries in Asia, Africa, the Middle East, Latin America, and Russia, where the Ford Foundation maintains active overseas programs. U.S. nationals are not eligible, although Fellows may study in the United States.

Successful candidates will:

- Demonstrate superior achievement in their undergraduate studies and hold a baccalaureate degree or its equivalent.
- Have substantial experience in community service or development-related activities.
- Possess leadership potential evidenced by their employment and academic experience.
- Propose to pursue a post-baccalaureate degree that will directly enhance their leadership capacity in a practical, policy, academic, or artistic discipline or field corresponding to one or more of the Foundation's areas of endeavor.
- Present a plan specifying how they will apply their studies to social problems or issues in their own countries.
- Commit themselves to working on these issues following the fellowship period.

IFP selects Fellows on the strength of their clearly-stated intention to serve their communities and countries of origin, and expects that they will honor this obligation.
