Susan Stokes is Tiffany and Margaret Blake Distinguished Service Professor at the University of Chicago. Her research interests include democratic theory and how democracy functions in developing societies; distributive politics; and comparative political behavior. Her co-authored book, Brokers, Voters, and Clientelism (Cambridge, 2013) won best-book prizes from the Comparative Politics (Luebbert Prize) and Comparative Democratization sections of APSA. Among her earlier books, Mandates and Democracy: Neoliberalism by Surprise in Latin America (Cambridge, 2001), received prizes from APSA's Comparative Democratization and Representation and Electoral Systems sections and from the Society for Comparative Research. Her articles have appeared in journals such as the American Political Science Review, British Journal of Political Science, World Politics, and Comparative Politics. Sue is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.